Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 06 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cold with some wintry showers in eastern areas.

Today:
Many central and northwestern parts dry with sunny spells, whilst further wintry showers affect the east. Rain, sleet and snow reaching northwest Scotland later. Cold.

Tonight:
Wintry showers east and southeast. Clear spells elsewhere with frost, severe across central parts. Rain, sleet and snow moving southeast across Scotland and Northern Ireland, turning icy in places.

Thursday:
Band of rain, sleet and inland snow moving south across Northern Ireland, Scotland and northern England through the day, with wintry showers following. Otherwise dry and cold with sunny spells.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Outbreaks of rain, sleet and snow across central areas on Friday. Turning changeable and less cold in the north over the weekend but largely dry and cold in the south.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.